ANTI-BRIBERY AND ANTI-CORRUPTION (FCPA)

ANTI-BRIBERY AND ANTI-CORRUPTION (FCPA)

While many law firms now have experience in corporate integrity, few have counseled companies in connection with the complex range of matters that McGuireWoods has both inside and outside the United States. Our experience has created a high level of credibility and relationships with enforcement decision-makers at the DOJ, SEC, SFO and other key law enforcement and regulatory agencies. We have:

- Direct experience with government policymakers and decision-makers, including intimate knowledge of prosecutorial processes.
- A full-service cross border investigations team that is fully integrated with a robust ethics and compliance counseling and investigation practice.
- Experience with Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA), UK Bribery Act and other anti-corruption and corporate integrity matters in more than 150 countries on six continents;

Over the last fifteen years, there has been an unprecedented rise in the number, severity and scope of FCPA and other anti-bribery and anti-corruption (ABAC) enforcement actions by the U.S. government. At the same time, foreign and international anti-corruption laws and standards are proliferating, along with close cooperation amongst U.S. and non-U.S. law enforcement. We have experienced these developments from the front lines, advising a broad spectrum of clients – including some of the largest multinational companies in the world – as they navigate internal and external investigations, compliance program development and enhancement, and other critical facets of FCPA and other ABAC matters.

With more than 50 lawyers in our world-class Government Investigations and White Collar Litigation practice, McGuireWoods has decades of experience serving as primary FCPA and anti-corruption compliance counsel for Fortune 500 companies across the globe.

Our lawyers regularly conduct internal investigations and defend external investigations across major substantive areas relevant to international trade, including the FCPA, UK Bribery Act, False Claims Act and related qui tam matters, sanctions regulations (OFAC), Export Administration Regulations (EAR) and International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR). We conduct internal audits and investigations focused on identifying suspected violations, prepare voluntary self-disclosures for submission to the government and work to negotiate with the government for the best possible result. We represent clients at every stage of these government investigations — from informal inquiries through disciplinary proceedings and appeals.

UK BRIBERY ACT OF 2010

The UK's Bribery Act has been described as the toughest anti-corruption legislation in the world being seen as requiring a higher standard from corporates than the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. It captures the criminality of individuals and corporates both in the UK and overseas. It puts positive obligations on corporates to actively prevent bribery.

Our lawyers are regularly instructed to defend companies and individuals in high profile prosecutions brought under the UK's Bribery Act.

Countries Where We Have Provided Government Investigations Advice and Assistance in Recent Years

We not only defend clients facing allegations of violating the FCPA, but also work proactively to help clients ensure compliance with these laws. Our recent work has included conducting anti-corruption gap/risk analyses and related on-site compliance reviews in several countries in Europe and South America for two multinational Fortune 500 clients (a manufacturer and a food product company), and assisting a Fortune 500 bank with an anti-corruption gap/risk analysis and related revision of its compliance policies and procedures. Similarly, we assisted a Fortune 500 energy client with several related matters: we conducted an anti-corruption, sanction compliance and related trade restriction gap/risk analysis, focusing on its foreign sourcing of fossil fuels; revised the company's compliance policies and procedures; and conducted training for a targeted employee population.
